FRIDAY, JANUARY 22, 1847.

COURT COURIER.

District Court.

Yesterday morning the death of Peleg Chandler, Esq., was announced to the Court by Gov. Kent, in the following remarks:—

May it please the Court:

I rise at the request of my brethren, to announce to the Court the death of one of the oldest and venerable members of this bar. Peleg Chandler, Esq., died at his residence in this city, on the 18th inst., at the age of seventy-three years. This morning has been added to the list of the departed. And we are already impressed by this dispensation of Providence, who, who have so recently preceded us to the tomb. Within a few months, four members have passed from our midst—one of them among the oldest of our brethren—but one younger in years, who had returned from a residence in a Southern clime to the midst of us, was cut down and he rested. And yet another, who had announced active life with us and for seven years practised at this bar, and there established himself by the power of his understanding, at the head of this bar, removed to the commercial city of New England, and there secured a position of an equal among the highest, he too, in the midst of his years and in the maturity of his intellect, has gone down to the silent grave. The children of Penobscot have not forgotten him, and will ever bear testimony to his professional character, and to his honorable, high and able discharge of the duties of his profession.

We are now called to pay a passing tribute to the memory of another. Our brother Chandler entered the profession late in life. After graduating at Brown University in the last century, he returned to his home in New Gloucester, this State. He was young, ardent, ambitious and eager to enter upon his chosen pursuit, the profession of the law. But he yielded to the wishes of his father, and for many years devoted himself to agricultural pursuits on the paternal farm. He had passed the meridian of life when he commenced the regular study of the law, and was soon forced into its active practice. Under these disadvantages, he seemed to be a learned lawyer, but he had a fund of practical good sense, shrewd observation and knowledge of men, so and judge, and a power of producing conviction, as to satisfy his clients and secure a respectable standing at the bar.

As a friend and neighbor, and in all the relations of life, he was highly esteemed in our community. He had a sympathy with humanity, and an interest in all that regarded the welfare of man. He was social in his disposition, and warm in his intercourse and strong in his attachments.

It would be unjust to the memory of a departed friend, and to my own feelings, if I did not say, which is too rare in this world—I mean his friendly interest in young men, particularly in those of his own profession. He was ever ready with the word of advice, encouragement and admonition, and with friendly companionship to aid, and cheer and sustain the young and inexperienced in those trying days of entrance upon the active duties of life. Although many years my senior, we commenced practice in this city in the same year, and I can bear testimony from my own experience to this trait in his character. A friendship was then formed, which has continued without interruption till his lamented decease. I shall ever entertain a grateful remembrance of his early acts of kindness, and his words of encouragement and sympathy.

Without indelicately obtruding into the sacred precincts of domestic life, I may properly say that our departed brother was peculiarly happy and fortunate in all the relations and ties that bound him to his home the highest pleasures of life. And it was pleasant to see the fidelity and devotion of our friend to his second family, and the faithful discharge of duty by a parent in his old age, by the request of all relations, children, who never brought the blush of shame to a parent's brow, but who gladdened the heart and cheered his downward path by the practice of honor, integrity, and exalted and increasing reputation.

These repeated dispensations are calculated to make a deep impression on us all, and they are particularly admonitory to those of us, who, by these removals are fast passing into the foremost rank of age of the members of this bar. Happily will it be for us all, if we learn to moderate our zeal in the pursuit of shadows, to strengthen the bonds of friendship, to discharge with new fidelity, our duties to the living and cherish with affectionate regard the memory of the dead. So this,—

> "When our summons comes to join
> The innumerable caravan, that moves
> To the pale realms of shade, &c. &c.
> We go not like the quarry slave at night
> Scourged to his dungeon, but sustained and soothed
> By an unfaltering trust, approach the grave
> Like one who wraps the drapery of his couch
> About him and lies down to pleasant dreams."

It only remains for me to communicate to the Court the Resolutions adopted by the Bar, and to repeat the invitation contained in the last Resolution.

Resolved, That on the occasion of the decease of Peleg Chandler, Esq., one of the oldest members of our association, the bar of Penobscot County deem it proper to express their deep regret at the loss of a brother, who had for so many years lived in their midst, and who had secured to himself the respect and attachment of his brethren, by his social virtues and friendly intercourse and professional courtesy and fidelity, and who has gone down to his grave in the maturity of his years, and sincerely mourned by those who knew him, as a friend, a neighbor and a brother.

Resolved, That the members of this bar will ever cherish the memory of his virtues, and of the kindness of his heart, and they tender their unfeigned sympathy with his bereaved family, and as a token of respect for his memory will attend his funeral obsequies on Thursday next, at 10 o'clock.

Resolved, That these resolutions be communicated to the family of the deceased, and also to the Court now in session, with an invitation to his Honor the Judge, and the officers of the Court, to attend with us the funeral services.

To these remarks Judge Allen responded as follows:—

The death, which has been announced this morning, adds another to the list of venerable men—members of this Bar—who within a brief period have left the theatre of life. To the names of Gilman and Williamson is now added the name of Chandler. Few of the olden time are now left us.

The occasion has very naturally suggested the departure of another, who was the ornament of our Bar, and who left us but a few years ago for a wider sphere of professional labor—who was distinguished alike for his accurate knowledge of the law as a science, for the strength of his understanding, and for his uniform courtesy at the Bar. He died in the strength of his manhood, and in the full vigor of his gifted intellect. And I trust his memory will be affectionately cherished by all of us who knew the extent and variety of his powers.

I can add nothing to the very just and discriminating tribute which has been rendered to the memory of him whose death we now deplore. He was well educated in early life, but entered late in life upon the study of the law as a profession. In his practice he secured the respect and confidence of all his associates. In social life, he was interesting beyond most men of his age. He possessed an extensive knowledge of the men who he ped to the generation which preceded him, as well as those among his contemporaries, and was a keen observer of the times and of events. He was therefore an instructive companion. He felt a deep interest in the young, and they were attracted to him by his cheerful spirits, his love of harmless pleasantry, and his mild and courteous manners. His domestic virtues were without reproach—home was the theatre of his happiness. He had great benevolence of heart, and felt a deep sympathy with humanity, and these were richer possessions than the wealth and honors of the world.

It will be a source of mournful satisfaction to the Court to unite with the Bar in attendance upon the funeral services, and for this purpose, and as a mark of respect to the memory of our Brother, the Court will now adjourn—repeating to the Jurors and officers in attendance, the invitation of the Bar contained in their resolution.

Annual Meeting of the Bangor Mechanics' Association.

On Thursday evening 14th inst the Annual meeting of the Bangor Mechanic's Association was held at their Hall and the following officers elected:

Wm H. Perry, President,
John M. Lander, Vice President,
Wm. Hall, Treasurer,
J. W. Willard, Secretary,
Chas. Sawtelle,
Sumner Marston,
Wm. H. H Pitcher, } Trustees
Stephen Perry,
Wm J. Lawrence.
Orland R. Sawtelle, Librarian,

The reports of the various departments were read and accepted.

During the last year the number admitted as regular members is twenty-six and as honorary members two; seven have withdrawn and one regular and one honorary member have died. The present number of members is two hundred and twenty-eight.

The amount of cash and resources placed in the hands of the Treasurer during the last year was eight hundred and thirty six dollars and thirty one cents. He collected during the year five hundred and sixty three dollars and seventy five cents. Amount abatements, two hundred and seventy three dollars and seventy four cents—cash on hand sixty three dollars and seventy six cents.

There are no outstanding bills against the association.

The Library continues to be attractive. One hundred and thirty-two volumes have been purchased the last year and one volume received as a donation. The whole number of volumes is nine hundred and seventy six. This does not include several volumes of periodicals, documents and newspapers unbound.

Three thousand two hundred and twenty nine volumes have been issued from the Library during the year, which is an increase of six hundred and twelve volumes over the preceeding year.

A number of persons have become members of the Association within a year or two mainly for the purpose of giving to their children the benefit of the library.

The Secretary reports a list of thirteen donations for the year as follows:—

Public Documents from Hon. Hannibal Hamlin, Hon. Hezekiah Williams, Henry Call, Esq., and a Friend.

A Book entitled Mechanics' Philosophy, Jerdology and Astronomy from B. McRuer.

A specimen of Copper Ore from the Island of Cuba by Capt Wm. B. Reed.

A specific Iron ore from Lincoln Co. by Col. Moses Hunley.

Trap rock and Copper Ore, by James R. Mercomber.

A pair of Chinese shoes by Mr. William F. Wingate.

A Shark's jaw bone, by Capt. Joseph Sanders.

A pair of Mouse Horns, by Mr Daniel Stone.

A species of mole, by Mr Geo. A. Stickney.

A Bust of Gen. Harrison, by Moses L. Appleton Esq.

A Book Mark by Miss Ellen Fox.

The prosperous condition of the Association and the various it offers for improvement should cause it to receive the active cooperation of every mechanic in the city. No man is too old to be benefitted by such an institution and rarely can an aged and wise and true hearted man find a greater opportunity for doing good and exerting a beneficial influence than in such an institution. It seems marvelous to us we must say, that while there is such an institution as this in our city that every mechanic who wishes to make acquisitions to the mind and heart for to do good in his generation, does not at once connect himself with it.

☞ A communication signed "A Parent" has been received, but it is not quite in order for publication. The writer was probably engaged in thinking about the article being published instead of an earnest endeavor to write from the abundance of an overflowing mind and a gushing heart. The writer need not despair—close application will secure success.

☞ The Grand Division of the Sons of Temperance at their late quarterly session revoked one charter and expelled one member for irregularity and disobedience of orders.

☞ The weather here is wonderfully fine, the sleighing as good as can be desired, and the wood haulers, and lumbermen are doing a large business.

It is nearly reduced to a certainty that no U. S. Senators nor Supreme Court Judges will be chosen in Iowa by the present Legislature.

☞ There was no choice of representative on Monday last in the Berwick district or in Newcastle district.

☞ The Mechanic Association will meet this evening.

Free Lecture this Evening.

Dr Paige will deliver a Free lecture at Market Hall this evening explanatory of his proposed course of scientific lectures upon Electricity, Galvanism and Magnetism and their application as medical agents.

We have never had an opportunity to hear Dr Paige lecture, but from the testimony of others and a slight examination of the interesting ground he will occupy, we think he can hardly fail to interest and enlighten an audience. The lecture this evening is free and of course every man and woman can attend and judge for themselves of the ability of the lecturer the value of his scientific experiments as to the propriety of attending the course of lectures which is to follow.

Prince's Imperial Gage.

(White Gage) of some authors.

The Washington, Jefferson, Green Gage, and some other varieties of Plums, were noticed in the Whig and Courier last winter, but some others are well worthy of notice, among them, more especially, Prince's Imperial Gage, which in bearing of extensive cultivation as it possesses qualities more desirable than most other plums.

This variety originated with the late Wm. Prince, Esq., a noted horticulturist of Flushing, N. Y., from the seed of the Green Gage, which he called it the "White Gage," and for many years it was known only by that name.

In 1823 and 9, it then being considered one of the best, Mr. L. brought this and other valuable varieties to Bucksport, and disseminated them in that vicinity, where they have ever since been cultivated, and that this variety has been proved and tried for 19 years and not found wanting.

In about the years 1830 and '31, Samuel Johnson, of Charlestown, Mass., sold the plums of one White Gage tree, which now stands near the Market Square of that town, for 50 dollars annually, for two or three successive years—The Prince family finding this variety was attracting unusual attention by its great productiveness and fine flavor of the fruit, concluded to change the name from "White Gage to Prince's Imperial Gage. They also raised the price of each tree they sold to one dollar.

The tree has proved very hardy and a rapid grower—bears young, and what is important to us, it is well suited to our Penobscot climate.

It yields so bountifully, that it is considered "one of the most profitable on the plum catalogue."

The fruit is of good size, though not so large as the Washington, to which it bears some resemblance. Skin of a yellowish green when fully ripe, and covered with a white bloom—Flesh very juicy, melting, and of a very rich, sprightly flavor. Ripens here about the 15th Sept. To show its hardiness, one fact is adduced in proof:—One tree of this variety brought here in April last by Mr. L. was severely injured by the first wheel that it was the right almost worthless. The bark and a part of the wood was ground off for nearly 3 feet, in one place, one third through the body. A preparation of Gum Shellac was applied, and the tree set out in his garden, and notwithstanding the severe injury, it not only lived at that time and bore and ripened nine good sized [illegible] about four months from the time it was planted.

A small quantity of salt was occasionally sprinkled round the roots, which is always conducive to the health and growth of the plum, which is a marine tree.

Our Difficulties with Brazil.

The Sun gives the following details in regard to the difficulties between Mr. Wise and the Government of Brazil at Rio. The difficulty, (says the Sun) originated in the arrest of two men from the U S Ship Columbus, who were on shore while the vessel was at anchor in the harbor of Rio. The men got intoxicated, and were proceeding through the streets to go on board, were placed under arrest, and conveyed to prison. Lieut. Davis, who was on shore with the men; being at some distance at the time of the arrest, he followed, calling on them to accompany him. Before he got up, they were taken into the fort. On arriving to the fort, he drew his sword in evidence of his authority as an officer of the United States, and demanded their release.

The guards then beckoned him to come up, and supposing it their desire to have an interview with him in relation to the men, he did so, but immediately found himself and his companions prisoners. Mr. Wise, the United States Minister, being apprised of the occurrence by Captain Rossenu, of the Columbia, opened a correspondence with the Brazilian Government, demanding their release. The reply being deemed unsatisfactory, was answered by another communication from the Minister, informing them that the Columbia would open her batteries upon the city in two hours, if Lieutenant Davis and the men were not released within that time. The Lieutenant was promptly released, but the men were detained under a plea that being found intoxicated in the street, they were amenable to punishment by the civil authorities. Further correspondence ensued and matters still remaining in custody.

A day or two after this occurrence, the Emperor's youngest child, the infanta Isabella, was christened, the ceremonies being honored by salutes from vessels at, and the illumination of the dwellings of the foreign ministers. The latter insisted a whole week. But Commodore Rossenu, and Mr. Wise declined to join in any ceremonies of this character, until full reparation had been made for the insult offered to their country. The authorities requested the Commodore to fire a salute which he declined doing. Mr. Wise and the other Americans did not illuminate their dwellings, and have consequently been subject to repeated insults. The son of the Consul was assaulted in the streets, and seriously wounded.

The subject was taken up in the National Parliament then in session. The House of Commons passed a bill requesting the withdrawal of Mr. Wise, but the Upper House rejected it, and the commons tendered their resignation in a body. Thus the affair rested at last advices, the men being still in prison. During the excitement at Rio, the California boys arrived and resolved to have an opposition christening of one of our American sovereigns, two of whom were born on the passage. A splendid silver cup was provided as a present for the young volunteer, whom the Chaplain duly christened Alta California. Col. Stevenson stood god-father on the occasion. All the officers of the ships and many Americans were present.

The volunteers were allowed full privileges on shore, but there had not been a single desertion. Col Stevenson made a speech to them in relation to the difficulties, and every man expressed his readiness to join in storming the city Rio, if necessary to sustain the honor of their country's flag.

War had not yet broken out between Brazil and the Argentine Republic, but was daily expected. Brazil had ordered a large force to the Argentine frontier.

The destruction of immense quantities of Pork by the late floods in Ohio, has caused that article to run up about $1 per barrel. We shall soon expect to hear the loose lips press attributing this rise to the new Tariff.—Albany Journal.

From the Boston Journal.

Appeal to Young Men.

Rev. Mr. Cushman delivered in Boston, a very impressive address, on the moral dangers to which young men were exposed, especially in large towns.

He said the present was a period replete with phenomena in which the philanthropist and the Christian could not observe but with deep interest and concern for young men. And, set apart as he had been, for doing what might be done by pointing out danger, to save from temptation, he had felt it his duty to call the attention of young men to the snares which so thickly beset their path. He had spent a quarter of a century in cities and watched the result of temptation and the fall—catastrophe of many who had yielded to the seductions of vice.

There were, he said, three temptations to which young men who left home were peculiarly exposed, especially in a city.

The first of these was appetite—a love of eating and drinking for pleasure. This was characteristic of the young every where. But in cities the products of all countries and climates were brought together and spread out in the most tempting forms to provoke the appetite. Not only are private tables loaded with luxuries, but the tables of our hotels and restaurants are furnished with venison from the great West—with the finest mutton of England—with birds and fish and intoxicating drinks from the most distant portions of the globe.

The temptation to prodigality in eating and drinking, he said, was little suspected by parents who sent their sons here on account of the greater advantages for education, or business. He knew young men, that during his first year run up a bill of $2,000 at one of our most respectable hotels.

What meets the eye, in passing through our streets, to tempt the appetite, met the ear, the eye in London or the beggars of Naples would be annoying. Is it the dictate of wisdom to say "Let us eat and drink, for to-morrow we die?"

Fashion is another powerful temptation in the city. Although the weaker sex, when degraded are at first the victims of it, stronger, yet the garments of Solomon are all addressed to young men, to avoid the allurements of the strange woman! The ruined woman spends her life in terrible reprisals, and the paths of the young men in the city are everywhere beset with her wiles.

But the greatest temptation is avarice—a desire of money without earning it. Money in itself is entirely valueless, is yet the representative of every kind of value—for all that can contribute to personal gratification or social position. All the luxuries which wealth can produce centre in a large city. The inhabitants are money changers. Rivers of wealth are flowing through the streets, in which the old are seen daily buzzing and the young growing in adoration of their looks.

The first thing that attracts the attention of the child, is money. He sees the world engaged in buying and selling. As he grows older, he sees palaces spring up from nothing, and splendid furniture, as if by magic, coming to the room to fill them—he sees obscure men rising to great honor, fools becoming suddenly respected as wise, and the defrauded becoming insolvent as their coffers become filled. He sees all money can command—everything he says, it is be one thing needful. I must have money—honestly if I can.

He must have his oyster lunch, his cigar, his theatres and no way to keep out of debt. Indulgence and honesty must part company. The struggle comes—the die is cast—He is a clerk, he makes a false entry or private disposes of some article—or, if in business for himself, the process is not to pay for the goods, but to the gaming table or the bowling alley. Perjury and falsehood come in to conceal his profligacy from creditors. He goes on in this downward course, till prepared for every robbery and villainy.

Rarely a young man may trace his ruin to parental indulgence—foster up his appetite with sweetmeats and confectionary—then the roomy and cigar, the theatre, the bowling-alley, wean him by power of present temptation, till he can, at night in the evening, go and practice with flattering words, and be followed by a note for the correction of the streets. Character, friends, property, all is bartered for gratification, and he has nothing to look for but death and a grave at the hands of public charity. Such is the history of thousands.

A few days since, he asked one of the rich men of this city, how many of his companions, who left him, started wealthy, had not been ruined? He answered, not one in twenty!—How many widows, who have sacrificed everything to place their sons in desirable situations, have had all their hopes crushed, and their days filled with bitterness.

The dangers to young men in cities, are partly from temptations without, and partly from within. Solomon says, "the first fruiteth to his own heart sad lot!" Every man has a temptation in his own bosom, but in a city, temptation is without in far greater than in the country. Multitudes of young men there, lost to virtue, set themselves about destroying others.

The young men have society of their own age. It is not in their generous nature to suspect a friendship offered for theirs. How great the danger of a young man, when invited by a deceiver in one above him, with flattering words invited to share its pleasures! He does not approve of drinking, but it would be mean to refuse. He intends to keep the Sabbath, but his friend has asked him to ride. His mother warned him to shun the theatre—his friend says it is only a representation of history. He has a horror of gambling—but they only play for amusement.

It is in the very essence of temptation to put on a fair exterior. Vice is too monstrous without the disguise of virtue. Satan's locks conceal his sting. Temptations must assume soft names. The Museum, Athenæum, Howard Athenæum. Yes—the great philanthropist made cast his cloak over vice.

Did a young man wish to escape these temptations—to spend his life in search of answering the great end? let him resist that friendship which offers to share with him its pleasures. True friendship is incompatible with solicitation to wrong. Let him remember, there are two sides to every question of pleasure, and make it his maxim, always, to look on the other side of every temptation.

Let him remember his responsibility to God. He cannot be overcome without his own consent. If he exposes himself, he is guilty; he does it voluntarily and if he falls, he is the murderer of his own soul. Let him remember we must all appear before the judgement seat of God, to answer for the deeds done in the body. There is beyond the grave a state of unalterable retribution. Let him consider this when pleasure forsakes and temptation plies her sophistry.

The way of virtue is the only one that leads to happiness. But, said the speaker, we should fail in duty if we neglected to direct you to the strength offered you in time of trial. Seek the Saviour—make Him the Judge, your friend—Learn of him, and while others stray into the paths of sin and perish, he will conduct you by his right hand, where are pleasures forevermore.

Perfection in Painting.

A celebrated living author lately observed that he rarely made a pun; "but when I do," said he, "I'm very proud of it for it is always the worst that ever was made, and therefore excellent. The other day, the continued, a lady spoke to me about Mr ——'s gallery of pictures, and remarked that she should very much like to get an introduction to see them. Well, said I, he is my friend, and you shall go—you shall go and pick his pockets." "Pick his pockets!" she exclaimed, why should I do so?" Why, said I, because he has pict-ures.

The Chase family had a great meeting at the Newhall town house, yesterday. They assembled from all quarters, and the town is said full of them during the day. Descendants of the family were present from Missouri, from Canada, from Maine, New Hampshire, and various parts of this State.—Over a hundred of them were assembled at this meeting.—Newburyport Herald.

BY THE LAST MAIL.

FROM TEXAS.

Alarming Indian Movements.—Will they act in concert with the Mexicans.

The latest accounts from Texas state that a large number of Indians have collected around the head waters of the Brazos, a great portion of them with evidently hostile intentions. The War Department promised them $17,000 of presents, but the bill did not pass last session, and it was unable to comply. Fearing a disturbance, Gen. Houston, previously to leaving Texas, directed the Messrs. Torreys at Torrey's Trading House, to pay over to them presents to the amount of $3,000 on his own responsibility. This had the effect of quieting a great number.

But since then, Neighbors, the Indian agent, has been there, with Jim Shaw—a friendly Delaware—holding a "talk" with them. He finds numbers of friendly Indians, driven in by large bands of Waccos, Pawnee, Mohas and others, who are now the most hostile to the white man. The latter party have already began to commit depredations.

Over two hundred head of horses have within the last few weeks, been stolen, from the settlers, who are preparing for the worst. The entire frontier in that quarter is defenceless, and there can be no doubt that we are on the eve of a bloody Indian war. The next news from that region may be of the most painful character.

"In addition to this, we learn from undoubted authority, that Wild Cat, at the head of 300 mounted Seminole warriors, has gone down to join the Mexicans, and that other large parties, of the different tribes may be expected to follow his example.

☞ In the case of Albert J. Tirrell, who has lately had his trial in Boston for Arson, the jury returned a verdict "not guilty." The announcement of the verdict produced a strong sensation, and the prisoner wept freely. He was then remanded to prison, being still held upon the indictment of adultery.

☞ Col. J. Maxwell, conductor on the Eastern Rail road, while passing the circular saw at East Boston depot, [used for the purpose of cutting up wood for the locomotives,] accidentally swung his hand against the saw and badly mutilated several fingers.

☞ A correspondent of the London Times says that the house in which Shakspeare was born, at Stratford-on-Avon, has been purchased for the purpose of being conveyed to America.

☞ John Q. Adams is fast recovering, and will probably soon take his seat in Congress.

Washington, Jan. 18,

The Vice President appointed General Cass a regent of the Smithsonian Institute.

Mr Sevier presented his instructions from the Legislature of Arkansas, against the payment of the claim for French spoliations.

Mr. Breese was appointed a member of the Committee on Commerce, to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Mr Pennybacker.

Mr Johnson, of Maryland, offered a resolution asking the Secretary of the Treasury whether the Sub Treasury embarrassed the operations of the Treasury, and whether it ought not to be suspended or repealed.

The bill to create the office of Surveyor General of Oregon, and to grant donation of land to settlers therein was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading.

The graduation bill was then taken up, and was postponed to Monday.

The Senate went into executive session, and then adjourned.

In the House of Representatives.—A resolution of inquiry was adopted relative to the erection of a light house at the mouth of the Mississippi.

An effort was made to change the hour of meeting to 11 o'clock, but it was unsuccessful.

Mr Preston King moved the suspension of the previous orders, with view to enable him to introduce a two million bill, which was lost—yeas 50 nays 103.

On the motion of Mr Houston the House went into Committee of the Whole, Mr McClelland in the chair.

The bill to increase the pay of non-commissioned officers and privates, regulars and volunteers, two dollars per month, and to give a hundred and sixty acres of bounty land, was taken up.

An amendment was offered making the increase of pay three dollars per month which was adopted.

Other amendments were proposed, and a long discussion ensued.

The committee rose.

Mr. Hungerford had leave to introduce a bill to provide for the deposit of monies received from customs and public lands, in the treasury, and the payment of persons engaged in collecting the same, and for other purposes.

NOTICE.

☞ The present limits are inadequate to accommodate my numerous retail customers. On 1st of February next, I shall commence to erect a [illegible] store, sufficiently large to [illegible] and numerous customers. [illegible] it is not sufficient large [illegible] by spacious Brick and to appear [illegible] by brilliant." This Gigantic Idea [illegible] is to come down, and a Larger, more Spacious, and Resplendent Establishment is to take its place. This enterprise is not supposed to my establishment in connection or associated with the great character of Oak Hall [illegible] the Superb Marble Granite Warehouse, the Unrivalled Establishment, the Palace of Industry, the Matchless Establishment, the Paragon of Industrial Trade, the Stupendous Scheme, the Wonder of Modern Times, the Triumphant Success, the Extraordinary Operation, the Unprecedented Success. Such names probably will apply to my new enterprise when completed. I might as well undertake to describe the undescribable in the limits of my Boston Advertisement, as to carry on my large trade within the walls of these present quarters. The public are respectfully informed that no words can be employed to express adequately the extensive Warehouse which I propose to erect, that it requires a larger sphere for its presentation than this Warehouse afforded in 1845, and [illegible] in the metropolis for extent and magnitude and [illegible] far from being equal to the extent of my [illegible] operations. So liberal a patronage must require a larger house for the unfettered movements of its enormous [illegible]—an establishment far surpassing the present one is absolutely necessary, and one is shortly to be erected that will surprise and delight all interested in such matters.

G. W. SIMMONS,
Oak Hall, Boston.

P. S. Being obliged to move to make these extensive alterations, the Large, Fresh Stock of Fashionable Ready made Clothing, Piece Goods and Rich Fancy Goods, adapted to the present Fall and coming Winter, amounting to upwards of one hundred and twenty five thousand dollars, will be closed up at prices much below the extreme low prices I have been selling. All the Furniture of the present establishment for sale—Large Mirrors, Clocks, Chandeliers with rich cut Drops, Counters, Show Cases, &c. &c. dawlm nov6
